7 restaurants in Kuala Lumpur where you can now dine at

The days of being stuck at home are over as you can now dine out responsibly during RMCO at your favourite hotel restaurants in Kuala Lumpur.

With the announcement of the newly sanctioned Recovery Movement Control Order \(RMCO\), expect your daily life to progressively improve for the better. One of it is being able to dine out at your favourite restaurants and enjoy extended opening hours without having to rush through your meal.

While we continue to question how hotel buffets are going to be like in the weeks to come, there's no stopping you from enjoying a la minute dim sum and three-course meals at some of the finest hotel restaurants in town. Whether it's a romantic date night (throw in a staycation, why not?) or a family outing, here's a growing list of hotel restaurants that are now open for dine-in.

I. PRIME, Le Méridien Kuala Lumpur

Chef de Cuisine Ramiro Moya and his team have prepared a sumptuous feast for when you make your return to PRIME, the award-winning restaurant at Le Meridien KL. Dinners will now be available from 5.30pm to 9.00pm with a concise menu comprising signature dishes, a variety of signature steaks and desserts to finish. Check out also the monthly promotions available, especially if you're a Maybank, CIMB or UOB cardholder with up to 45 per cent off your total bill for the month of June.

3. Lai Po Heen, Mandarin Oriental Kuala Lumpur

In case you missed it, Lai Po Heen at Mandarin Oriental KL has reopened its doors with a slew of classic Cantonese dishes and contemporary dim sum to tantalise your tastebuds. Executive Chinese Chef Michael Wong ensures nothing less of deliciousness with his signature chicken, shrimp and abalone 'siew mai', crispy prawn and squid dumplings coated with almost flakes, oven-baked mini egg tarts flavoured with sweet corn, and more. End your meal with the restaurant's signature Durian Pancakes, a hearty serving of fresh durian mixed with whipped cream inside a soft-skin exterior. Lai Po Heen is open everyday for lunch from 12.00pm to 2.30pm, and dinner from 6.00pm to 9.00pm.

4. THIRTY8, Grand Hyatt Kuala Lumpur

If you've missed dining in the city, head to THIRTY8 for its spectacular view of the twin towers and a dining experience not to be missed. Whether for lunch, afternoon tea or dinner, the restaurant is ready to welcome you with a great menu of both western and Asian dishes. If you need a drink or two, come over for its Happy Hour from 5.00pm to 8.00pm to sample some specialty Martini creations. And in case you're wondering, JP Teres is also opened for in-house dining as well, continuing its delicious spread of Malaysian cuisine in an open kitchen setting.

6. Curate, Four Seasons Kuala Lumpur

If you've been enjoying the delicious takeaway menu from the team at Four Seasons KL, you'll be delighted to know that Curate is now open for dine-ins. On top of enjoying Executive Chef Junious Dickerson's Southern American cooking — think fried chicken and waffles, you may also want to sample comforting Indian dishes prepared by the hotel's new chef. We'd say the lamb shank biryani is a must-try alongside other classics like palak paneer, varuval and more.
